2021 Engage

Students and teachers alike have faced innumerable challenges and traumas over the past year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

As you look to next fall, and the likelihood of classrooms being back in school buildings, consider how you will create the loving, caring environment so many students will seek — and that all students deserve.

As you reflect on this past year and its variety of learning scenarios, consider the stress you felt personally and the stress your students experienced unique to their own situations. During this year's Engage conference, become equipped with some of the nine Essential Skills for the Love and Logic Classroom and the knowledge to provide trauma-informed care. Educators are bracing for — or are already experiencing — the mental health crisis experts know is plaguing many students as a result of the pandemic.

Come and learn from Dr. Fay, CEO of Love and Logic, and Decca Knight, a trained counselor and Love and Logic facilitator to be prepared. You'll also be joined by a trained facilitator on the SkillsUSA Framework and educational resources. You'll develop skills that will help you engage with students in meaningful, career-preparing, respectful, and caring ways to help them get the most learning out of your classroom. Keep adding tools to your classroom toolbox by learning about new SkillsUSA Framework educational resources as well! You will receive, as a participant in Engage, a complimentary copy of all SkillsUSA resources presented. The resources are valued at more than $50!
